*Regularly enrolled students at ABA approved and California Accredited law schools who successfully complete their first year of law study and are advanced to their second year are exempt from the First-Year Law Students' Examination (FYLX) requirement. Students, however, may elect to take the examination on their own and some may take it to fulfill their schools' requirements.

¹ These statistics were compiled using data available as of March 12, 2021. Concord Law School, St. Francis School of Law, and Northwestern California University School of Law became accredited law schools in August 2020, but their results are reported in the unaccredited category, as the majority of the FYLX test takers at these schools were enrolled in their unaccredited degree programs.

² Applicants who attended all sessions of the examination and have a complete set of scores, which may include zeros.
