2017 Environmental Law Conference at Yosemite®

The Environmental Law Conference at Yosemite® is nationally recognized as the largest and most prestigious gathering in California of leaders in environmental, land use, and natural resources law. We hope you will join us and many of our nation’s top environmental officials, lawyers, and other professionals in the spectacular setting of Yosemite.

Conference Program Materials and Merchandise
Conference registrants will receive a USB storage device with an electronic version of all program materials. Before the Conference, attendees will receive a link with information on how to review and download the program materials from the Internet. It may be helpful to review a program’s reference material before the class, so please take a moment to check the materials for classes you plan to attend. This website is not available to the public, and access is given only to Conference registrants. Late-breaking supplemental materials not available before the Conference will be added to this site at a later date. We are pleased to announce that wireless Internet service will be available in all education program rooms, compliments of the Law Office of Jennifer F. Novak.

The annual Conference t-shirt will be available for pre-purchase on the registration form. Conference products are available while supplies last.

Scholarships
The Environmental Law Section of the State Bar of California is pleased to offer five (5) Michael H. Remy Scholarships which include tuition, transportation, room and board courtesy of Remy Moose Manley LLP, and at least 25 tuition scholarships. Scholarship awardees will be notified after August 21, 2017.

.75 Hour MCLE
Session 1a: Friday General Session
Welcome by Osha Meserve, 2016-2017 Chair, Environmental Law Section, Soluri Meserve. Introduction by Ryan Waterman, Yosemite Co-Chair, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck. Keynote presentation by David Bernhardt, Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

David Bernhardt is the Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior. He is a former shareholder at Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, where he chaired the Natural Resources Department. During his previous tenure at Interior, Mr. Bernhardt served as the Solicitor of the Interior Department, the third-highest ranking position at Interior and as Deputy Solicitor, Deputy Chief of Staff, Counselor to the Secretary of the Interior, and Director of the Office of Congressional and Legislative Affairs. Mr. Bernhardt also previously led the International Boundary Commission between the U.S. and Canada. Mr. Bernhardt received his BA from the University of Northern Colorado, and law degree with honors from the George Washington University Law School.

Friday, October 20 | 9:00 am-9:30 am
Session 1b: Friday General Session
Friday’s keynote presentation will be immediately followed by an important update on the future of the Environmental Law Section, led by Osha Meserve, 2016-2017 Chair, Environmental Law Section, Soluri Meserve; Eric Adair, 2017-2018 Chair, Environmental Law Section, Hinson Gravelle & Adair; and Howard (“Chip”) Wilkins III, 2015-2016 Chair Environmental Law Section and Environmental Law Section Council of Sections Representative, Remy Moose Manley LLP.

Friday, October 20 | 9:45 am-11:15 am
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 2: Looking for “Buried Treasures” and Then Doing the Deal: The Latest Challenges and Tips in Developing, Selling, Buying and Leasing Contaminated Sites
Our panel of experts will discuss the latest developments and hot topics regarding site assessment and remediation, with or without agency overse, in the context of the prospective development, sale or leasing of contaminated properties. The panel will cover the latest Brownfield policies, how to best navigate soil vapor intrusion issues, the do's and don'ts of seeking and obtaining closure/no further action letters from government overse agencies, and strategies to best protect against or minimize your environmental liabilities when transacting a deal involving impacted properties. Our panel will also address the Trump Administration’s impacts on these issues.
Moderator: Gary A. Meyer, Parker Milliken, Los Angeles
Panelists: Marie Rongone, U.S. EPA Region IX Office of General Counsel, San Francisco
Suzi Rosen, Partner, Engineering and Science, Inc., Torrance
Matt Winefield, Winefield & Associates, Real Estate Ventures, Long Beach

Friday, October 20 | 9:45 am-11:15 am
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 3: The Dynamic Policy, Politics, and Law of Desalination
With new technology, regulations, and changing coastlines, the setting for desalination on the California coast is very dynamic. According to the industry, desalination technology has improved drastically in recent years. Meanwhile, the State Water Resources Control Board has passed the “Desal Amendments” as part of the Ocean Plan, creating a new framework to evaluate desalination plants as a potential part of the state’s water supply. But given potential impacts of ocean intake and briny dispersal, as well as other potential effects on ocean ecology and coastal values, the plants concern environmental groups, which are taking an active part in the permitting process. This panel will discuss the current legal and political battles over desal, and what they may mean for the future of the practice in California.
Moderator: Jonathan Zasloff, UCLA School of Law, Los Angeles
Panelists: Alvar Escriva-Bou, Public Policy Institute of California, San Francisco
Susan Jordan, California Coastal Protection Network, Santa Barbara
Tom Luster, California Coastal Commission, San Francisco
Richard Svindland, CalAm Water, Monterey
Friday, October 20 | 9:45 am-11:15 am
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 4: CEQA and the Tangled Web of Environmental Laws
CEQA is California's premiere environmental law, mandating disclosure and public consideration of the possible adverse environmental consequences of any discretionary action that will result in a physical change in our environment. Concurrently, proposed projects are often subject to a myriad of other laws, including the Coastal Act, Sustainable Groundwater Management Act, State Planning and Zoning, and the common law public trust doctrine. This panel will explore the challenges and sometimes conflicting or overlapping legal requirements that come to the fore during the environmental review process.

Moderator:
Gideon Kracov, Law Office of Gideon Kracov, Los Angeles
Panelists:
Sydney Coatsworth, Ascent Environmental, Inc., Sacramento
Whit Manley, Remy Moose Manley LLP, Sacramento
Beverly Grossman Palmer, Strumwasser & Woocher, Los Angeles

Friday, October 20 | 9:45 am-11:15 am
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 5: New California Legislation: The Latest from Sacramento
The California Legislature is known for passing groundbreaking environmental policies, which are often adopted nationally and internationally. Amid the backdrop of a new, business-friendly EPA Administrator, the California Legislature served up, and Governor Brown signed, a number of new laws to preserve the state's leadership role in the environmental field. Join our panel of seasoned legislative staffers for a timely discussion of newly enacted legislation, with a special focus on legislative accomplishments and trends for the future.

Moderator:
Gary Lucks, Beyond Compliance, Oakland
Panelists:
Catherine Freeman, Chief Consultant to the Assembly Committee on Water, Parks, and Wildlife, Sacramento
Kip Lipper, Office of the Senate Pro Tempore, Sacramento
Marie Liu, Special Assistant to Assembly Speaker Anthony Rendon, Sacramento

Friday, October 20 | 11:30 am-1:00 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 6: Federal Chemical Reform as Seen Through the California Lens
In June 2016, the Federal “Frank R. Lautenberg Chemical Safety for the 21st Century Act” was signed into law by President Obama. Known more popularly as the “new Toxic Substances Control Act”, it constitutes an historic and comprehensive overhaul of the original law of that name, likely with far-reaching impacts. Our panel of experts will discuss the significant changes to the federal TSCA regime, key substantive rulemakings and procedural mandates, and important milestones. Specific attention will be given to how this new regime may – and may not – affect toxics regulation in California, including under California’s Proposition 65 and Green Chemistry Initiative, as well as how changes in federal administrative priorities and edicts may affect its implementation and enforcement.

Moderator:
Claudia Polsky, UC Berkeley School of Law, Berkeley
Panelists:
Andy Igregias, Safer Chemicals, Healthy Families, Washington D.C.
Dr. Jeff Morris, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C.
Peggy Otum, Arnold & Porter, San Francisco
Dr. Meredith Williams, California Department of Toxic Substances Control, Sacramento

Friday, October 20 | 11:30 am-1:00 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 7: Cooperative Federalism and Water Resources under the Trump Administration
Recently enacted federal legislation affecting Central Valley Project operations (Subtitle J of Title I of the WIIN Act) modifies federal environmental requirements, while leaving state law, and federal law requirements for compliance with state law, in place. Will the state increase its activity to fill in the gap in federal regulation? Or will Congress depart from its historical deference to state water law and override state law, as proposed in H.R. 23 and other legislation?

Moderator:
Paul Kibel, Golden Gate University School of Law, San Francisco
Panelists:
Clifford Lee, California Department of Justice, San Francisco
Rachel Zwilling, Defenders of Wildlife, Sacramento

Session 8: Results from the Laboratory of Democracy: Which California Climate Policies are Working Best? Which are Not?

California's legislature has set an ambitious 2030 climate emissions target, posing serious questions for policymakers about which tools to use to meet that target. In addition, subnational jurisdictions across the country and the world continue to look to California for model climate policies. What has California's experience shown about the benefits and drawbacks of various climate regulatory tools? Which regulatory tools have worked best, and which have underperformed? And, given these lessons, what's coming down the pike for regulated industry in California on the path to 2030? Are climate taxes or other new tools a likely part of our future?

Session 10: Saturday General Session

Introduction by Alisha Winterswyk, Yosemite Conference Co-Chair, Best Best & Krieger LLP. Keynote presentation by Martha Guzman Aceves, Commissioner of the California Public Utilities Commission.

Martha Guzman Aceves was appointed Commissioner at the CPUC by Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. on Dec. 28, 2016. She previously served as deputy legislative affairs secretary in the Office of the Governor since 2011, focusing on natural resources, environmental protection, energy and food and agriculture. She was the sustainable communities program director for the California Rural Legal Assistance Foundation from 2005 to 2011. She was legislative coordinator for United Farm Workers from 1999 to 2005, working on labor and environmental issues. She is the co-founder of Communities for a New California, a charitable organization promoting increased civic engagement of underrepresented communities. She received her Master of Science degree in agricultural and resource economics from the University of California, Davis.

1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 11: Getting to 50% Renewables and Beyond: How California Plans to Achieve its 2030 Goals

SB 350 (De Leon, 2015) requires California to procure half of its electricity from renewable sources by 2030, with additional legislative efforts for even more aggressive targets in the coming decades. But while the price of renewables has been decreasing, the effort will require major deployment of new facilities and associated grid infrastructure, which will have significant land use implications throughout the state. In addition, decisions related to regionalizing California’s grid with other western states could affect costs and deployment as well as the ability to integrate intermittent energy in a way that does not increase overall emissions. This panel will discuss these issues and more as California’s aggressive renewable goals are put into action.

Session 12: Diversity Roundtable: Developing Diverse Leadership in Environmental Law and Policy

Environmental workplaces are increasingly devoting institutional resources to foster diversity and inclusion. This round table will explore how non-profit organizations, governmental entities, law firms, and other institutions in the environmental law and policy sector support individuals from diverse backgrounds rising to leadership positions. Motivations, strategies, and opportunities for creating a pipeline of diverse leaders in environmental law and policy will also be shared.

Session 13: Recent Environmental Law Developments in the U.S. Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals

The U.S. Supreme Court and U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeals have been active over the past year, deciding numerous major environmental law cases. Other key environmental litigation—including judicial challenges to the Obama Administration’s Clean Power Plan and “Waters of the United States” regulatory initiatives—is currently pending. Join a panel of environmental law experts who follow these judicial developments closely for a survey of the most important decided and pending environmental law cases from these courts. The panelists will also discuss general environmental law trends and developments in these tribunals.

Session 14: Public Lands: Past Achievements, Current Threats, and Future Opportunities

Even before the change in administrations in Washington, D.C., the role of the federal government in the management of public lands was a focus of national attention with the takeover of the Malheur Wildlife Refuge and President Obama’s invocation of the Antiquities Act to protect lands taking center stage. The 2016 winner of the Lifetime Achievement Award, Johanna Wald, will participate in a discussion of key issues in public lands protection, including the Antiquities Act, the rebirth of the Wise Use movement, and efforts by the Trump administration to divest public lands.

Moderator:
Ellison Folk, Shute Mihaly & Weinberger, San Francisco

Panelists:
Letty Bellin, Former Senior Counsel to the Deputy Secretary, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C.

Session 15: A View from the Bench: Marking the California Supreme Court’s Jurisprudence in Environmental Law
The California Supreme Court, perhaps the most influential state supreme court in the nation, decided over a dozen significant environmental cases over the past three years and currently has multiple environmental cases pending. Recent court decisions involving CEQA, greenhouse gas reduction, federal preemption, and coastal development permitting have helped to shape the administration of our environmental laws. At the same time, the composition of the Court has changed markedly during Governor Brown's tenure. With the dramatic shift in environmental policies at the federal level, California and the Court will play a significant role in shaping the environmental legal landscape in the coming years. This panel, which includes a Supreme Court Justice and two avid court-watchers, will examine the Court's past decisions and current trends, and offer observations about the direction of the Court and environmental law in California.

Moderator:
Kathleen Kenealy, California Department of Justice, Los Angeles

Panelists:
Sean B. Hecht, UCLA School of Law, Los Angeles
The Honorable Goodwin H. Liu, Supreme Court of California, San Francisco
Fiona Smith, California Environmental Insider, San Francisco

Saturday, October 21 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 16: Controlling Air Pollution from Mobile Sources in California
The importance of controlling vehicle emissions in California has only grown as stationary source emissions have continued to fall. Levels of traditional criteria pollutants remain stubbornly high in urban areas in the south, while tailpipe emissions are the chief source of greenhouse gases throughout California. In the face of federal regulatory backsliding on a number of air quality rules, this panel looks at the legal and regulatory programs the state is relying on to control transportation emissions today and to meet future goals. Topics to be discussed include infrastructure improvements, goods movement innovations, state mobile-source emission standards (including the zero-emission vehicle program), the Low Carbon Fuel Standard, and traditional measures to reduce criteria air pollutants from vehicles.

Moderator:
William W. Westerfield, III, Sacramento Municipal Utility District, Sacramento

Panelists:
Adrian Martinez, Earthjustice, Los Angeles
Elaine Meckenstock, California Department of Justice, Oakland
Matthew Nelson, Electrify America (subsidiary of Volkswagen Group of America), Reston, Virginia (invited)

Saturday, October 21 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 17: Respecting California Native Tribes as Sovereign Nations
Certain environmental laws explicitly provide for government-to-government consultation between California's Native Nations and local, state and federal agencies, but what does "consultation" mean? And what role does cultural bias play in the failure to recognize tribal governments as governments? This panel will describe tribal sovereignty, explore the unbreakable link between tribal sovereignty and the government-to-government concept, and describe the respect tribal leaders and tribal governments receive under the law. The discussion will focus on AB 52 and Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, and will also help identify ways to keep cultural bias from creeping into consultations.

Moderator:
Antonette Cordero, Office of the Attorney General, Los Angeles

Panelists:
Donna Beddow, County of San Diego, Lakeside
Cynthia Gomez, Tribal Advisor to Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr., Elk Grove
Merri Lopez-Keifer, San Luis Rey Band of Mission Indians, Martinez

Saturday, October 21 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 18: The Fix is In: Would Re-Engineering Save or Undermine the Delta?
Decades of Delta pronouncements have failed to prevent major species declines, water quality impairment, and ongoing battles over Delta water supplies. The proposal to build two massive Delta tunnels, now called “California WaterFix,” has generated intense disputes in an intricate web of proceedings, including one of the most complex reviews in the State Water Resources Control Board's history. This panel will comment on key areas of scientific and legal dispute and lessons learned from years spent evaluating this major water infrastructure project. It will consider more broadly whether re-engineering the Delta with new infrastructure as proposed would improve the Delta's sustainability or contribute to the Delta's destruction.

Merced River Restoration
Yosemite National Park is conducting ecological restoration projects in the Merced River using restoration techniques that have not been done in the park before. In the fall of 2016, a large wood structure was installed in the river that takes advantage of deposition processes to build out riverbanks. High river flows have jump-started the restoration process and the structure has already started to function as intended. The presentation will discuss the science and strategy behind the restoration, as well as anticipated future work.

Session 20: Built to Spill, or Built to Last? A Long View of the 2017 Oroville Dam Crisis
After five years of drought, heavy winter rains raised flood risks and renewed questions about California's resilience between extremes of drought and deluge. Oroville Dam is the 49-year old keystone facility of California's State Water Project. The dam's Winter 2017 crisis forced 188,000 people to evacuate when an emergency spillway was used for the first time. The Department of Water Resources asserts it has followed the law in Oroville's lengthy relicensing review and is developing a spillway recovery plan. Counties and environmental groups criticize DWR for underestimating known costs and risks, and failing to prepare for climate change or establish resilience under a complete range of drought and flood conditions. This panel will discuss intersecting law, science and policy issues and practical steps to protect the environment and public safety.

Session 22: U.S. Climate Change Regulation at a Crossroads: The Big Picture
This year has brought major changes vis-à-vis federal efforts to reduce greenhouse gas regulation and transition our energy sector away from fossil fuels. The Trump Administration has backtracked on many climate initiatives, and questioned the value of national and international efforts to control greenhouse gas emissions. It also is poised to reduce support for research and development of alternative energy. Do opportunities remain for federal progress and, if so, where? What role is the U.S. likely to play over the next few years in international climate talks? What implications will federal climate policy changes have for disadvantaged communities? And what strategies might states, local governments, advocacy groups, and businesses that support climate action use to fill the gap in federal action?

Session 23: Contaminated Groundwater as a Resource & Emerging Contaminants
In light of California’s lengthy drought, the expectation of future droughts due to climate change, and the provisions of the Sustainable Groundwater Management Act (SGMA), water agencies and municipalities are looking toward expanding local sources of water and implementing more extensive pump-and-treat remedies in impacted groundwater basins such as the San Fernando Valley. But such basins are already the subject of decades-old consent decrees and settlements between and among local, state and federal agencies and PRPs. This panel will examine the requirements of the SGMA, the plans of municipalities and groundwater purveyors to expand use of treated groundwater, and who should pay for those new treatment facilities.

Session 24: 50th Anniversary of the State Water Resources Control Board
In 1967, the California Legislature combined the state’s water right and water quality control programs, creating the State Water Resources Control Board. But the Legislature provided little guidance as to how to integrate the programs. Looking back 50 years later, how has the State Water Resources Control Board met the challenge? What needs to be done? What challenges has it faced in fulfilling its mission, and what challenges lie ahead?

Moderator:
Michael Lauffer, State Water Resources Control Board, Sacramento

Panelists:
Jennifer Harder, McGeorge School of Law, Sacramento
Felicia Marcus, State Water Resources Control Board, Sacramento
The Honorable Ron Robie, California Court of Appeal, Third Appellate District, Sacramento
Sunday, October 22 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE

In the aftermath of the historic leak of natural gas from the Aliso Canyon storage facility, the effort to ramp up alternative forms of grid energy storage has been supercharged. These efforts are further supported by the California Public Utilities Commission's requirement that Investor-Owned Utilities integrate different types of energy storage into the grid. This panel would look back at lessons learned from the Aliso Canyon leak; examine today’s burgeoning efforts to create alternative grid storage facilities; and discuss what these efforts may mean for the future of California's energy grid. We will place particular emphasis on the future of natural gas and the effect of storage going forward for structuring the energy grid.

Moderator: Eric Adair, Hinson Gravelle & Adair LLP, Valencia
Panelists: Janice Lin, California Energy Storage Alliance, Berkeley
Commissioner Liane M. Randolph, California Public Utilities Commission, San Francisco
Sarah Van Cleve, Tesla, San Francisco

Sunday, October 22 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 26: CEQA and Climate Change

The California Supreme Court's decision in Center for Biological Diversity v. Cal. Dept of Fish & Wildlife, the Governor's 2015 Executive Order, and state legislation on climate change have brought new challenges to the analysis of greenhouse gas emissions in CEQA documents. This panel will address how agencies and courts have approached the analysis of GHG emissions in the wake of the CBD decision and will also discuss how recent legislative initiatives and the Supreme Court's recent decision in Cleveland Nat'l Forest Found. v. SANDAG will affect this approach.

Moderator: Ellen M. Peter, California Air Resources Board, Sacramento
Panelists: Kevin P. Bundy, Center for Biological Diversity, Oakland
Jane Luckhardt, Northern California Power Agency, Roseville
Margaret Sohagi, The Sohagi Law Group, Los Angeles

Sunday, October 22 | 11:00 am-12:30 pm
1.5 Hours MCLE
Session 27: Receding and Advancing Jurisdictional Boundaries and the Interplay Between Federal and State Wetlands and Species Regulations

As the new Administration and Congress seek to redefine “Waters of the United States” and overhaul federal Endangered Species and Clean Water Act regulations, California wetlands and species laws are playing an ever more prominent role in land and water policies. This includes renewed urgency for completing the long-awaited rules governing wetlands and state waters, as well as expansive applications and enforcement of California’s Streambed Alteration Program, the California Endangered Species Act, and Fully Protected Species statutes. This panel will provide a comprehensive overview of recent developments in case law and administration at the federal and state level, with a particular focus on possible trends and future issues of concern over streams, wetlands, and endangered species.

Moderator: Eric Biber, UC Berkeley School of Law, Berkeley
Panelists: Clark Morrison, Cox, Castle & Nicholson LLP, San Francisco
Ken Sanchez, WRA, Inc., San Rafael
Deborah Sivas, Stanford Law School, Stanford

2017 SCHOLARSHIP INFORMATION

The State Bar Environmental Law Section offers two types of scholarships to the Yosemite Conference—the Michael H. Remy Scholarship, and tuition-only scholarships.

Scholarship applications were available at the Environmental Law Section’s website (see www.calbar.ca.gov/environmental), and were accepted from March 29 to July 13, 2017. The application period is now closed. Scholarship awardees will be notified after August 21, 2017.

Michael H. Remy Scholarships
The State Bar Environmental Law Section is pleased to offer the Michael H. Remy Scholarship. In his nearly thirty years of private practice, Michael Remy represented a wide variety of public and private clients as well as nonprofit organizations. Remy assisted large corporations and small entrepreneurs alike in various permitting and environmental matters throughout the state. Many counties, cities, and special districts relied on Remy’s counsel in the processing, environmental review, and litigation of large and small projects. Some of his most notable environmental accomplishments were: heading the successful political and legal efforts to shut down the Rancho Seco Nuclear Power Plant; and representing the Sierra Club and William Hewlett against the conversion of Shirley Canyon to a commercial ski run by the Squaw Valley Ski Corporation. In 1990, the Environmental Council of Sacramento named Remy “Environmentalist of the Year.” Remy was widely admired and loved by his colleagues, friends and family, who regarded him as a man of extraordinary intelligence, personal integrity, kindness, and generosity. Remy’s warm presence is sorely missed by everyone at Remy Moose Manley, LLP, but even in his absence, his memory continues to provide guidance and inspiration.

This scholarship, sponsored by Remy Moose Manley, LLP in memory of former Environmental Law Section member and advisor, Michael H. Remy, includes tuition, travel and room for the 2017 Environmental Law Conference at Yosemite®. There are up to five (5) scholarships of this type available, which is designed primarily, though not exclusively, for law students.

Tuition-Only Scholarships
The Environmental Law Section plans to offer at least 25 tuition-only scholarships to attend the 2017 Environmental Law Conference at Yosemite®.
